DUKE OF MANCHESTER AND AMERICAN BRIDE ARRIVE.

Detectives Meet the Party at Quarantine and Make Inquiries About Mrs. Lewis's Diamonds-Rumors of an Arrest, but None Is Made.

New York, Dec. 1.—Helena, Duchess of Manchester, the latest American girl to link her beauty and wealth with an ancient title and a British coronet, returned this evening to her native land, and protested, with pretty, girlish smiles, that she is just as democratic as she ever was.

The Duke was dressed in a rough-and-ready flaunch outing suit, with the trousers correctly turned up. Over this he wore a long fur-lined overcoat, with a deep astrakhan collar and cuffs, on his head he were a rough clath golf can He shawed no Her devoted father, Eugene Zimmerman, vice president of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Rallroad, welcomed her warmly on the deck of the St. Louis while the great American liner lay at Quarantine. He had a kiss and an embrace for his daughter and a hearty handshake for the young Duke, who stood smilingly beside her. -With Mr. Zimmerman were two detectives from police headquarters-Vallety and tives from police headquarters—Vallely and Strupp. They engaged the Duke in whis-pered conversation, and soon led him away for a secret conference. The presence of the detectives gave rise to the report that war-rants were about to be served on the Man-chester party. This story had to do with the Duchess's maid, Mary, and the recent episode of the loss and return of the bag of tewelry belonging to Fanny Ward Lewis. of jewelry belonging to Fanny Ward Lewis, formerly a well-known actress. As recent-ly cabled, the facts were these: Mrs. Lewis, who had been visiting the home of Mrs. James Brown Potter, had lost a bag of jewelry. No Arrest Made.

The Duke and Duchers of Manchester afterwards visited Mrs. Potter's home in in the garden, found the jewels and neg-lected to return them until she and her master and mistress had gone to their es-tate in Ireland. From there the jewels were returned to Mrs. Lewis with an explanatory letter from the Duke and the maid promptly laid claim to the reward offered by Mrs. Lewis for their recovery. It was said in London that Mrs. Lewis was not entirely satisfied. A cable to a New York Inner o few days ago announced New York paper a few days ago announced that she had consulted Scotland Yard de-tectives, who, in turn, had been in communication with Captain McClurky of the New York Detective Bureau.

Recalling this report, many of those on the St. Louis this evening jumped to the conclusion that detectives had been sent to the ship to arrest the maid. No ar-rest was made, however, and later it was explained that the detectives were present in response to a request of the bride's fa-ther, who feared the couple might be an-

The Cincinnati girl who came home a The Cincinnati girl who came home a Duchess looked charming as she stood by her father on deck. Slight, but well formed, with a wealth of glossy blond hair and a manner as democratic as her words promised, she made a pretty picture in the half light of the ship's lamps. She wore a stylish costume of black, with a collar of white lace about her shoulders. As she stepped out into the cool night air, she had donned a long black automobile coat trimmed with sable. A hat of black velyet with ostrich plumes set off to advantage

"We naturally have left our plans largely in the hands of Mr. Zimmerman."

The fond father of the Duchess promptly replied that as for him he was wholly at their service and awaited their pleasure.

"I need not tell you, gentlemen," he said, "how glad and proud I am to welcome said, "how glad and proud I am to welcome hack to America my dampher and her husback to America my daughter and her hus-band, the Duke. We will consuit together and later give you an outline of our plans." After some delay at the pier, incident to London and the maid, Mary, while walking in the garden, found the jewels and neg-lected to return them until she and her Holland House, where dinner was served. Later Mr. Zimmerman indicated the plans of the Duke and Duchess, which are, how-ever, subject to possible modification. The Duke and Duchess will remain in New York until Weenesday or Thursday, when they will establish themselves in Mr. Zim-merman's private railroad car, which is known as No. 7 of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road. They will leave over the Erie road for Lima, O. Thence by special train over the road of which Mr. Zimmerman is vice president, they will reach Cincinnati, and the bride of an Eng-lish Duke will triumphantiy re-enter her old home, in McMillin street. Captain McClusky said to-night that he had been requested by Mr. Zimmerman to protect the Duke and Duchess upon their arrival from annoyance. Mr. Zimmerman had received two anonymous communications bearing a Brooklyn postmark. The unknown writer rebuked the millionaire for permitting his daughter to marry a titled foreigner when there were "so many poor Americans who were more worthy."

Fearing that something of the kind might be attempted, Mr. Zimmerman, Captain McClusky said, had called on him for advice and he had sent Detectives Vallely and Stupp to meet the steamer as a courtesy to the bride.
